

An article which appeared in the Village Advertiser on January 17 made note of several incidents of malicious vandalism which had occurred recently in Osterville, among them the defacing of the Baptist Church. Last week, several young men took it upon themselves to rectify the situation by painting the church and cleaning up the litter in the area. Photo at left shows the church prior to being touched up. Hopefully other youngsters will take heed of this clean-up effort and see the advantages of preserving their village's character rather than trying to destroy their own home town. (Village Advertiser Photos by Mark Cote)